Public Record/news information/other notes: "I have a degree in Business Management, worked in fraud prevention and compliance for 18 years and served on six executive boards, including the Spokane County Citizens' Commission on Salaries. We deserve a City Council that will steward taxpayer dollars responsibly with a balanced budget, legislation that actually affects Spokane, and pledging not to increase the tax burden on city residents."

"I have been homeless, living out of my truck for a summer in Stevens County. I was fortunate to get the help I needed to become a productive member of our community. But I also saw others who were intent on continuing in their situation. We must provide help for those desiring to improve themselves while also enforcing our laws. These two things are not in competition but are equal parts in creating a compassionate and flourishing community." It is great to see businesses choosing to come to Spokane, but there is a reason much of that happens outside city limits. The regulatory burden on businesses must be minimized to spur growth and provide jobs. We need to clear the way for construction to improve downtown and make housing more accessible. I also support trade schools, apprenticeships, and trade unions for better wages and benefits." <https://www.votejeffmartin.com>
